FLAMES DESTROYING JUAREZ WHILE BATTLE IS RAGING FIERCELY

Federals Have Been Driven to Shelter and Are Probably Making Their Last Stand

ANOTHER CITIZEN SHOT ON THE AMERICAN SIDE

Rebels are Hampered by Fears of Mines--Dead
Estimated at 100 With Twice as Many Wounded--Americans are Caring for Wounded Under Flag of Truce.

El Paso, May 10.—The rebels have nothing but praise for their late adversaries. Those who took part in the final battle say the federals gave ground slowly and stubbornly and at the end preferred to die fighting rather than surrender. Although the regular federal troops are gone there is still fighting in the streets, numerous bands of citizens refusing to surrender to the rebels under any circumstances. The rebels have already begun looting and stores and private houses are being ransacked for valuables. Temporary hospitals have been set up in the streets and rebel surgeons are everywhere caring for federals and rebels alike.

The fire situation in Juarez became serious this afternoon as several portions are still burning fiercely and so great is the damage that the rebels have really captured a practically wrecked city.

El Paso, May 10.—The tri-colored flag of the Mexican rebels without the gray eagle of Mexico is floating on top of the municipal water tower in Juarez, a signal of final triumph after 48 hours' fighting.

General Navarro is said to have left the city and gone in the direction of Boche, with his entire command. The tide turned after six hours fighting today when Colonel Blanco arrived at 10 a. m. with 300 fresh rebel troops. His arrival heartened the fighting rebels and the combined force threw itself against the cathedral and jail which capitulated after the first fierce clash.

All the prisoners in the jail were liberated and the building was destroyed by fire. When the capture was completed the raising of the rebel flag was seen over the city hall and other buildings and wild enthusiasm broke loose in the rebel ranks.

Word was sent to Madero at once and he is said to be on his way to open headquarters at Juarez. The rebel leaders have already started to rebuild the city defenses. It is reported that about 40 dead federals were found on top of the old cathedral where they made their last desperate stand.

El Paso, Texas, May 10.—With flames bursting out in all parts of the city, the battle between federals and insurgents at Juarez, Mexico, was renewed with redoubled fury early today.

At daylight, persons returning to the American side reported that Madero's 1,500 troops had driven the federals into the cathedral, jail and a number of adobe houses nearby where they were believed to be making their last stand.

General Navarro's federals are off-the jail and barracks by assault at dawn today.

Madero himself has not actively participated in the fighting at Juarez, leaving the direct command there to Orozco and Villa while Blanco remains with 300 men outside the city, preparing to prevent any flank movement.

The fighting of yesterday has partially wrecked Juarez. Many buildings in the business districts have been demolished by cannon fire or riddled by rifle bullets. The streets are filled with debris and it will require months to repair the damage done.

It is impossible as yet to get an accurate estimate of the dead and wounded in Juarez, although a Red Cross physician declared today that at least 100 had been killed and twice that many wounded. Most of the insurgents wounded have been brought here. The federals are caring for their own wounded.

At 7 a. m. the federals still held the jail, cathedral, customs house, municipal building and barricades. Shortly after that hour there were several explosions of mines in the streets on which the insurgent troops were fighting, working havoc in the rebel ranks. Despite this, however, the insurgents continued to pour a heavy fire into the federal defenses, though they appeared to have gained no advantage today. Fires which subsided shortly after midnight broke out anew a few hours later and at 7 o'clock were still raging. Besides the postoffice, four business houses, the Mexican Central round house, a number of box cars and a portion of the barracks have been burned. The removal of the insurgent wounded is being carried on under the personal supervision of Gustavo Madero. American citizens under flags of truce are doing the work, Gustavo Madero having personally guaranteed all expenses.

BLACK HANDERS USE DYNAMITE

Pittsburg, May 10.—Two houses were wrecked, a hotel damaged and 40 persons narrowly escaped death today when the home of Antonio Sista in Sharpsburg was dynamited by Black-handers. Sista, wife and son were slightly injured.

While the rebels vastly outnumbered the town garrison and swarmed the city, there is some likelihood that General Navarro will try to keep the attacks at bay until reinforcements under Colonel Rabago, more than 1,000 strong, reach Juarez. The strongly fortified places in the city—the jail, church and barracks—are all in the hands of the federals and Navarro considers these impregnable, when properly defended. The insurgents on the other hand are compelled to fight in the open and exposed to the rifle and cannon fire of the garrison.

When night fell yesterday the battle had already raged for 18 hours. While the advantage appeared to be entirely with the rebels and they had control of most of the city of Juarez, they had actually made no impression upon the real defenses of the city. Only the street barricades and other outlying defenses of the city had fallen into their hands. They had, however, completely surrounded the garrison in the barracks, jail, customs house and church.

The rebels practically ceased their attack at nightfall evidently fearing that Gen. Navarro had taken advantage of the recent armistice to mine the streets of the city, and some of the principal buildings.

The insurgents, therefore refused to enter any of the down-town buildings, preferring to take chances in the barracks, jail, customs house and church.

Cleveland, May 10.—Julius W. Hopkins, confessed embezzler, sat in the county jail Tuesday gazing through barred windows at the open sky. He asserted that he stole from the First National Bank of which he was paying teller, to make his wife happy.

"I wanted my wife to be happy," he said, brushing his hand across his eyes. "While she lived I wanted her to be happy and comfortable. I was getting only $1,200 and $1,400 a year, eight years ago, when I began to—when it all started. I took a little at first. It went to $25,000, though, in three years."

"That—that is the sore spot," he said, brushing his hand across his eyes. "While she lived I wanted her to be happy and comfortable. I was getting only $1,200 and $1,400 a year, eight years ago, when I began to—when it all started. I took a little at first. It went to $25,000, though, in three years."

"I wanted to see her well-dressed and enjoying the little luxuries that other women have. Since she died I have lived in the simplest style."

"Then my old mother was living at Geneva. I sent her part of the money I took."

"I expected to pay back, as they all do, when I started. I soon found that I couldn't do it. My salary went up, and a short time ago it was increased to $2,500 a year. Then I was trying to make the Speed Indicator company, of which I was president, into a big concern. I wanted my children to have everything."

"My boy is down in Asheville now at school. He can hear it—Raymond has at least as much nerve as I."

"I want it settled quickly. I want an early trial. My property will be turned over to the bank. Anything that I can do to make good I shall do. I have not thought of suicide, for I am not a coward."

CHICAGO AGAIN WAN'S IT.

Chicago, Ill., May 10.—The Cook County Republican Committee has begun efforts to land the next Republican National Convention for Chicago.

Denver, Colo., May 10.—A Denver and Rio Grande passenger train was reported to have been held up near Salida and two persons killed.

real business of the meeting, the consideration of the re-election of Superintendent J. D. Simkins. Mr. Beggs asked for the re-election of Mr. Simkins and on the call of the roll the vote was shown as follows: For re-election, Keller, Beggs and Conrad. Against it, Kibler, Broome and Miller.

After considerable discussion of the question another vote was taken and the result was found to be the same as on the first ballot. This result practically eliminates Mr. Simkins as a candidate for the superintendency and doubtless a number of applications will be received for the future consideration of the board.

Several small bills were allowed and the board turned its attention to the

PARENTS ARE

Karl, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. Charles P. Brown, a well known resident of this city, mysteriously disappeared from his home, 339 East Indiana street, at an early hour Monday morning, and since that time no trace of his whereabouts has been obtained. When the boy failed to return home Monday night the father became greatly alarmed and instituted a diligent search for him, but with no results. He then called to his assistance the police department, and although the officers have made inquiries and searched the city over, they have failed to locate him. The parents, especially the mother, are greatly worried over the prolonged absence of her son, and any information concerning his whereabouts will be thankfully received. Phone 9461 Red.

FOUR MEN KILLED
WHEN AUTO WAS STRUCK BY TRAIN

Shelby, a town on the Lake Erie division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was the scene of a most tragic accident Tuesday night. Train No. 15, drawn by engine 2134, with Engineer S. N. Hiskey at the throttle and Conductor J. H. Moore in charge, was passing through Shelby and was bowing along at its usual speed, when the engine struck a big automobile on the Main street crossing, hurling it for a distance of thirty feet, instantly killing four. The men killed are James Hinsong, Samuel Winters and Mack M. Estes of Shelby, and U. J. Bell of Bucyrus. The bodies were turned over to the coroner.

WHAT IS IT?

HELLO, OLD PAL!
HOW ARE YOU?

As the chief of the opposition Senator Stockwell offered eight amendments, which were all defeated. The first tried to restore to the bill the provision that rates should be based solely upon the physical value of the property of the utility plus the actual cash invested and sought to strike out the market value of stocks and bonds as a factor.

The elimination of competition which the bill proposed would greatly enhance the value of these securities and the people would be taxed for the same.

Stewed Rhubarb—When very young and fresh the skin is thin and tender so that occasionally peeling is unnecessary. At the base of each stalk, as it is pulled from the root, is a tough white end from one to two inches long; this should be discarded as it is quite bitter. The lower half is frequently streaked with a reddish color, where the skin can be retained this pretty tinge is imparted to the sauce giving a pleasant change in appearance. As the stalks become older they must be peeled; this is best done by loosening the skin at the lower end and pulling it off in long thin strips. Cut the prepared stalks in inch pieces and it is ready for use. At least one cupful of sugar will be needed for each quart of fruit; frequently this may prove insufficient. Put fruit and sugar in an agate or porcelain lined saucepan, add about a tablespoonful of water to start the syrup, cover and stand over a slow fire until the sugar is dissolved and the fruit tender but not broken. Hard boiling will quickly disintegrate the rhubarb giving a stringy mush which is by no means as inviting to eye or palate as the tender pieces in a clear syrup.

Dumplings for Beef Stew—These are made in the same way as milk biscuits but with all shortening left out. Cut them in tiny rounds and drop into the simmering stew fifteen minutes before dinner. Cover closely and do not uncover until they are done.

SHE'S PROUD TO BE KIN OF "BILL" NYE

MISS FRANCES NYE

Miss Frances Nye, daughter of Congressman Nye, of Minnesota, has a great fund of humor which she probably inherits from her uncle, Bill Nye. She has a droll way of telling things that is unusual and has other characteristics of her humorous uncle.

She was the most delighted girl at the trick I had played you ever saw. Her eyes twinkled with mischief. She couldn't talk about anything else. We rode along for a matter of ten miles when, coming to a fork in the road, she said that if I didn't mind waiting for her she would like to go and say goodbye to an aunt of hers who lived half a mile up the diverging road. I had been riding twenty miles south and still had ten miles to go on my return. So I told her that if she would excuse me I would wait for her under a big tree at the fork. She said she wouldn't be gone long and started I dismounted, lay down at the foot of the tree, lit my pipe and pretty soon fell asleep.

When I awoke I looked into the face of "my cousin" standing in the midst of a dozen or more Confederate soldiers. She smiled at me and said:

"I'm sorry to return evil for good, but the truth is I'd been trying for some time to get up into this region with certain information I'd been gathering about your army movements for General Jackson. These gentlemen have been waiting for me near here and I just rode over to deliver my information and tell them that you were here with some more of the same kind. Please let me have your dispatches."

I never was so completely done up in my life. I couldn't do anything but give her the documents which she handed to an officer. They debated what to do with me and finally concluded that as a prisoner I would only be in encumbrance, so after holding me for a while they let me go on.

I left them, looking inwardly that some day I would make that girl pay for the way she had treated me. But some day didn't come till after the close of the war. I was retained in the service and in Virginia for a while in 1865, and one day getting a leave of absence I went over into the Shenandoah valley to hunt her up. I found her at her home on a tobacco plantation.

The most satisfactory vengeance a man can vent upon a woman is to make her love him, then hit her. I was quite full enough of bitterness to ward her to play that game on her if I could. I pretended to think her action toward me very bright and declared that instead of making me hate her it had only drawn me toward her. This had a good effect, and she seemed to feel sorry for what she had done, though it was in the line of her duty.

I played my game so well that I succeeded completely, not at once, for I made several trips to see her. Then, when the peer was ripe I prepared to take my revenge. After some deliberation I concluded simply to drop her without a word of farewell.

I dropped her for four days then rode over to see her and told her that I loved her and if she wouldn't marry me I would blow out my brains. She consented and for twenty years I never knew an unhappy moment. She is waiting for me and I am impatient to go to her.

The Veteran's Story

A Southern Gal Tucked Him, and the Result

By JAMES D. MOREHOUSE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911

My meeting with my wife is a curious story in itself, and illustrates the fact that there is no rule whatever for love.

When I was in the service, with that force which was opposing Stonewall Jackson in the Shenandoah valley, I was sent down to an outpost stationed at a little town some twenty miles south of our main army with a message to the colonel commanding there. While waiting for some written communications the colonel was getting ready for me to take back a young girl came into his headquarters and asked for a pass. She was as trim a little body as I ever saw, bright red cheeks and auburn hair — something one seldom sees in the south. She struck my fancy the moment I looked at her. I was standing behind the colonel, who was writing at a pine table. The girl said she wished to go north to relatives in Harrisburg, Pa. The colonel wouldn't give her a pass to do so. She was about to turn away disappointed when I tipped her a wink.

You must forget I'm an old duffer and picture me as a boy of twenty, full of the old scratch. I thought what a pleasing episode it would be for me to escort the girl north. When I winked at her I was to convey information of a plan I had conceived to help her out. Then I rushed forward and throwing my arms about her neck gave her a smack. She didn't resent it. "Why, Mag!" I cried. "How in the world came you here?"

She caught up at once. "I came down just before the war opened, and I've been trying to get back north ever since."

"How's the folks?"

"Pretty well. Mother's in poor health."

"Why do you wish to go north?"

"To do something to make a living. A girl can't earn anything down here."

"Colonel," I said, "I wish to introduce my cousin, Maggie Allen."

Luckily she had not given any name. The colonel shook her hand and told her that since she was my cousin he would most certainly give her a pass. I was touching for her. I told him that we had been brought up together as children and I knew that every member of her family were strong Union sympathizers. He wrote the pass and in a little while gave me the discharge. Then the girl and I started northward on a twenty mile ride on horseback.

MONG women noted for charity and benevolence, the name of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts stands pre-eminent. Hers is a worldwide fame for work of this kind, and deservedly so. It seems most fitting therefore that she should be chosen for the memorial window in the Cathedral at Liverpool in honor of women who have done work of this nature.

It is not only the fact that she gave largely that has brought her into prominence, but that she gave so wisely. Many who have large fortunes consider they do enough when they give liberally to philanthropic causes. But not so the Baroness Burdett-Coutts. She studied the conditions about her and the problems of the poor, and so did much more good with her money than she would have done by merely subscribing when asked for donations. And this fact it is that makes her life worth studying. For whether what we give is large or small, it will do its best work if it is given in such a way as to bring relief to some special condition. And even though we may not be able to give money, we can still help if we will give thought and influence. We can give counsel to help those in need, to help themselves; or we can arouse the interest of those who can lend financial aid. And back of the money the Baroness Burdett-Coutts gave was always the thought to give more than mere money would bring.

She brought one of the worst sections of London, had the old and un sanitary buildings torn down and model lodging houses erected which she rented for a very small sum. She presented a market to the City of London for the supply of good wholesome food to the poor. The East London Weavers' Association was her suggestion, also the opening of recreation grounds. She established model farms for the teaching of good farming. She was the pioneer in many social movements that are just beginning now to claim widespread attention.

She brought about many important reforms in the teaching of girls in the schools, and she established sewing schools for adult women and secured for these schools government contracts. She gave out-of-pocket money to start prosperous careers in the colonies.

In all this work, she did much more than can be seen than the mere giving of money. She got right into the lives and hearts of the people, waked up their ambition by giving them a brighter outlook on life, helped them to help themselves, and since she had the money, put them on their feet. But the personal help and interest were really the finer part of her work and did those she helped more real good than money without it.

Governor Harmon and Attorney General Hogan have decided that the state shall not be crippled by lack of funds in its prosecution of legislators under indictment for bribery. The report that an enormous fund had been raised to employ high priced lawyers to defend all persons indicted, was met with a reply from the state administration that the commonwealth would have a similar fund to pay the expense of a vigorous prosecution. A bill carrying an appropriation of $7,500 for the purpose will be shortly introduced in the general assembly. More money will be provided if necessary.

AN OLD CUSTOM OF LEGISLATORS

Republican papers throughout Ohio are frank to admit it has long been common talk that the use of money was required to secure the influence of legislators, but they do not offer an explanation why this custom of blackmailing has been permitted to exist so long. The answer is that no Republican administration has ever had the backbone to get after these grafters. Governor Harmon, Attorney General Hogan and other Democratic officials associated with these two in the fight to purify the atmosphere in the legislature, are swamped with letters and telegrams from Ohioans congratulating them on their stand against graft. If they are successful they will have accomplished more than any other administration has in several decades.

In an article prepared by a Columbus correspondent which was published in many Ohio weeklies and dailies last Thursday was this statement: "It has been a custom in certain legislative circles for years past to get after men interested for or against any measure that concerned a large interest. For instance, if a railroad company was interested in a bill because it threatened their business, or if they wanted a law for their protection, immediately a number of legislators would swoop down upon the railroads and demand money for their votes." This was published in Republican papers throughout Ohio.

It generally requires a certain amount of backing to put up a good front.

The Poet Philosopher.

I have read a million stories published during recent years, and I haven't seen a villain worth a tinker's ribald jeers. He's a milk and water villain, is the modern, cheap John Knavie; you'd mistake him for the hero if he had a bath and shave. I am yearning for THE OLD— the villain of the TIME VILLAIN, olden, golden time, who would tighten his suspenders and go wading deep in crime. He would murder folks for vengeance, he would slaughter them for cash, and his eyes shot black malefices, and he had a black mustache. He was modeled after Manfred, on whom Byron placed a wreath, and when nothing else was doing he was gnashing of his teeth, and he uttered bitter curses, and he moved around in gloom, and he kept the hearsey busy hauling people to the tomb. He would stick you with a dagger, he would brain you with his staff, and he always did his murders with a loud and mirthless laugh. For a time the villain triumphed, as a villain always should, and he seemed to have a toe-hold on the hero, truly good; but the good old-fashioned novel always ended right side up, and it left the villain drinking retribution from a cup. O the good old swarthy villain of the good old breezy days! He and all his gifted authors long ago have gone their ways!

Young Sturmer naturally prizes this instrument very highly, and never permits it to be taken out of his sight, lest something should happen to it. It is a perfect specimen of the work of this great violin maker, and has a beautiful, big sonorous tone.

THIS DODGES CONSTITUTION

Senator Swanson of Virginia Is Back of the Movement, Which Is Popular In Country Districts—Said Head and Whiskers Debate Leads to Offers of Vaudeville Engagements.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, May 10.—[Special.]—Efforts to expend national money on good roads have always been blocked by assertions that there was no constitutional authority for such purpose, but a method has been found to overcome or get around the sacred document in this regard.

Senator Swanson of Virginia has introduced a bill appropriating $100,000,000 of national money for good roads to be expended in the next five years. He provides that it shall be expended upon roads used as post roads and rural delivery routes. They are the same thing.

If the government marks out a route for a rural delivery carrier to follow it becomes a post road. The constitution gives congress authority to "establish post offices and post roads." With authority to establish post offices has been the authority to build post offices. Thousands of such buildings have been provided. By establishing post roads congress establishes its power to improve them. There is no longer a constitutional barrier.

It is Sure to Come.

It may not be the Swanson bill, but it will be some bill which will authorize a large expenditure for the improvement of the rural delivery post roads. It is sure to come. The rural delivery service is becoming more popular every year, and every year there is a greater demand for better roads.

Senator Swanson is a member of the postoffice committee and will have an opportunity to push his bill. Moreover, there is a growing belief in farming communities that they are not getting their share of the federal appropriations, and the rural communities still control congress.

Wanted on Vaudeville Circuit.

Soon after a bunch of Washington newspaper men held their great "no hair and whiskers" stunt applications came in to get prices on the famous quartet, Joe Cannon and Tom Carter, representing the whiskers side, and Bob Taylor and Nick Longworth, representing the baldheaded side, for an indefinite tour of the vaudeville circuit.

It was not insisted that Umpire Champ Clark should accompany the quartet, although it was believed that he could increase the gate receipts. "What a barrel of money a fellow could make if he could take that bunch on the road," remarked one of the newspaper men. "My wife was dead set against my coming here," Speaker Clark told the audience. "She said it was a silly performance, but I don't know when I have enjoyed an evening more than tonight."

Byrnes Owned Up.

Congressman Byrnes had a chance at the tariff recently. In the beginning he said, "Among the tenderfoot congressmen whose names have been added to the directory this session I presume I am the youngest and tenderest."

And no one disputed him. They told that Byrnes was coming—by that I mean the South Carolina papers—and they said he would "wake 'em up some day." Although he is youthful, that did not deter him from sailing right into Jim Mann and John Dalzell, Joe Cannon and some of the old leaders on the Republican side. He wasn't afraid of them.

He Was Also a Son-in-law.

We were talking about the relative prominence of men in the house, and mention was made of Congressman Longworth, the son-in-law of the former president. "He married prominently," I remarked.

"Hold on," said Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts. "You are getting on dangerous ground now. Please remember that I have been a son-in-law."

And I at once recalled that for the past ten years whenever Gardner did anything notable—and he has done many in that time—it was always stated that he was the son-in-law of Senator Lodge. I have known a number of men who figured in the "son-in-law" category, but only the most mediocre accepted it without becoming restive and uncomfortable.

Troops on the Border.

Senator Smith of Michigan is one of the men the president has taken into his confidence, and he believes that the president performed a great patriotic duty when he sent the troops to the Mexican border. Recently the Michigan senator received a letter from a friend who lives on the border which said that only the presence of troops could prevent an international complication.

The writer points out that if it had not been for the presence of the troops at least one occasion when he witnessed a fight both regulars and insurgents would have crossed into the United States and used our soil as a place of offense and defense.

IN THE SPRING EVERYONE NEEDS S.S.S.

Spring is the season when the blood is weakest, and our systems least responsive to the demands of nature. It is the time of fickle appetites, poor digestion, lack of energy, bodily fatigue, and many other systemic disturbances which warn us that we need a tonic.

Everyone who needs a tonic needs a blood purifier, for it is the weakened and impure condition of the circulation that is responsible for the run-down constitution. A great many so called tonics are mere nerve stimulants, often producing instantaneous exhilarating effects, but acting with decided injury on the system later. If your system is weak and depleted you can only tone it up by supplying an increased amount of nourishment, and this can come only through pure, rich blood. Any tonic which does not purify the blood is dangerous, because it leaves the impurities in the circulation to constantly prey upon the health.

S.S.S. has been used extensively in our family as a Spring tonic, given to both the old and the young, with the best results. It thoroughly cleanses the blood of all impurities, at the same time it builds up the general health, giving a fine appetite, strength and energy. We have found it to our children as intimate and found it to be non-injurious to the system and always capable of purifying the blood and promoting health.

My blood was weak and impure last Spring and I was troubled with a species of letting down of the system. Under the fine tonic and blood purifying effects of S.S.S. my appetite improved, my weight increased and my blood was restored to its normal healthy condition.

Today's Talk on "The Control"

The STEERING WHEEL is on LEFT hand side of car. The chief reason for this is that a car should stop on the right side of the street, and, having the steering wheel on the left, the passenger and driver can step directly to sidewalk without climbing over wheel and lever, or going around car. The driver is in better position in passing all vehicle traffic. Other makes of cars are now following this position of wheel.

The brake pedal interconnects with the high-speed clutch, so that both cannot be engaged at the same time. Pushing the pedal partly forward disengages the clutch before the brake is engaged, so that in driving through crowded traffic, the clutch can be slipped with the foot. In this case, when the brake pedal is released, the clutch automatically takes hold again. Too much cannot be said in favor of this feature, in cases where the car is used by the business or professional man.

"People willingly pay large sums for insurance, which is really death insurance; but real life insurance frequently consists in taking Eckman's Alternative. 'Jung sick' person afford not to take the Alternative."

It sharpens the appetite, makes life look different, brings better health with greater earning power. Often persons are much improved than they were ever before, then are finally cured. Mr. Webb's report follows:

ATHLETES OF OLD DENISON HOLD ELECTION

make a showing in the athletic world, a man of recognized ability must be secured.

Among a number of good men who were aspirants for the position, the men at the head of the university had one man in view, who, if he could be secured, they felt would fill the position with honor to the college and credit to himself.

That man was Walter J. Livingston, who graduated from Denison in 1909, and who since that time has devoted his time almost entirely to teaching physical culture and coaching the various games. In addition to this he has always borne the reputation of being one of the best all round college athletes Denison has ever known. As he has always been devoted to the interests of the college it is safe to predict that he will secure excellent results in his department.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Little Phil's First Horseback Ride

"I WISH you would please tell us a real good war story, daddy," asked Jack one evening.

"All right," said daddy. "Suppose I tell you about my old general, Philip Henry Sheridan, or 'Little Phil,' as all his men affectionately called him."

"First I must tell you that he was a cavalry leader. That means that all his men had horses. The men who fight on foot are called infantrymen. Next I must tell you how he became such a wonderful rider. When he was only five years old he was playing around his father's farm in Ohio one day when a group of older boys dared him to get on the back of a horse that was grazing in the next field. Little Phil couldn't take a dare then any more than he could when he grew up, and he jumped from a fence on the horse's back and grabbed its mane."

"With a snort of astonishment the horse jumped the fence and galloped down the road as fast as he could go, leaving the big boys crying with fright, for they thought surely that Phil would be thrown off and killed. But not much. The horse ran in to his owner's barn three miles away, and there was Phil still on his back, sticking like a chestnut bur.

"'Weren't you scared, soony?' asked the man who helped him down.

"'No, sir,' said Phil; 'nary a bit. I'd 'a' gone farther only the horse would.'

"Well, Little Phil became a cadet at West Point and in his very first command as lieutenant showed his horsemanship. He was stationed at Fort Duncan, in Texas, and while he and two of his men were outside of the stockade one day a band of Apaches surrounded them. The chief, never dreaming of resistance, jumped from his mustang to seize Phil, but Phil ducked under his arm, was on the horse's back like lightning and galloping to the fort for help. And he got the help and returned in time to kill several of the Indians and save his two compatriots."

"Hurrah!" cried the children.

"So when in the great war there came a demand for cavalry leaders Little Phil was made a colonel and put in charge of the Second Michigan troops and the Second Iowa horsemen. In his very first battle at Booneville he and his two regiments whipped General Chalmers with nine regiments. For this he was made a brigadier general, and if it wasn't too late I'd tell you how I fought under him. But I'll tell you some other evening."

"I'm going to be a general," said Jack sleepily.

"All right," said Evelyn. "Hurry up."

TERRIBLE DEATH OF A COSHOCTON MAN

(Special to Advocate.)

Coshocton, May 10.—Joseph McSkimmins, age 30, a painter, was instantly killed this morning in a spectacular manner while at work at the Claw plant.

The victim of the accident was sitting on one of the rails of the electric crane thirty feet above the floor when the crane ran him down and cut his body entirely in two. He dropped to the floor below, being dead before his body landed.

The operator of the crane did not see the man and McSkimmins did not see the big crane coming, thus the tragedy occurred.

It's a pretty good fault for a woman's elbows to be sharper than her tongue.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OF MT. VERNON NEEDED ADVICE

Experienced No Trouble For Year and a Half But was Finally Compelled to Call for Aid.

"When I want your advice I'll send for you" was the motto posted in the office of Mayor Mitchell during the first month of his incumbency as chief executive of Mt. Vernon. The mayor took this action after a number of Mt. Vernon "dry" had waited upon him with words of advice about the enforcement of the liquor laws.

Nearly a year and a half has passed and the mayor has experienced no need of advice of any one. Yesterday he felt that he needed some advice.

He had before him a man who was a physical wreck who had pleaded guilty to a violation of the Rose law. He would not be accepted at any work house or prison and his honor did not know what to do with him.

He called Silas Parr, W. A. Ackerman and Rev. Ira Houston, all prominent dry leaders and put the proposition up to them. After visiting the prisoner at the county jail the men recommended that he be allowed to go to the soldiers' home where he was eligible for admission because of his discharge from the U. S. army during the war with Spain. He was given a suspended sentence and will be allowed to go to the soldiers' home.

COURT NEWS

Common Pleas Court.

In the case of Frederick Martin vs. Ohio Bottle Co., et al., at the conclusion of the evidence on behalf of the plaintiff, the court sustained a motion by defendants to arrest the testimony from the jury and direct a verdict in favor of defendants. The suit was brought to recover damages for personal injuries received by plaintiff while at work in a stone quarry, caused by being struck by a stone. The court held that there was no negligence shown on the part of defendants as, under the law, entitles the plaintiff to recover compensation. A motion for a new trial will be filed and the case will probably be taken to the Circuit Court.

Mary J. Lingafelter vs. O. P. Connor, on trial to the court and jury. At the time that J. F. Lingafelter became a bankrupt, plaintiff claims that she owned four bowling alleys which were stored with the property of James F. Lingafelter, in a building on Riley street. She says that the property was worth $800. She says that they were unlawfully taken possession of by E. W. Crayton, trustee in bankruptcy of the estate of James F. Lingafelter, and in 1906, were sold by the trustee, to defendant O. P. Connor. That, by reason of their being her property, and not the property of J. F. Lingafelter, she is entitled to be reimbursed by the defendant, Connor, for the value of the four bowling alleys.

The defendant claims that the purchase was made in good faith, relying upon the property being that of James F. Lingafelter; and he says that it was, in fact, J. F. Lingafelter's property.

Justice Holton's Court.

Four trainriders were arrested by a special B. & O. officer and taken before Justice Holton. They all claimed to be glassworkers and produced their union cards, saying that they had come here in search of work. The Squire fined them each two dollars and the costs and then remitted the fines and discharged them. The men left, having a good opinion of Justice Holton.

Justice Horton's Court.

DESIRERS TO IMPROVE THE P. O. SERVICE

Recently the postoffice for the purpose of securing a correct and complete list of the patrons of the free delivery service, distributed blank slips requesting the insertion of house number, street and the list of all (of all ages), residents, employees, boarders, etc., and asked if patron would be willing to put up mail boxes. This letter seemed to be greatly misunderstood. The idea and purpose of the boxes is to improve the service, and enable many that are frequently inconvenienced, to secure better accommodation. At the present time the city carriers frequently have a great deal more mail than they can deliver in the time limit. Under the present condition the carrier rings the door bell and is compelled to wait until some one comes to receive the mail which probably requires from one-half to two minutes at each stop. Now you can figure for yourself, and see what this would mean in the course of a day's work. Conservatively this is estimated to consume on an average of about 25 per cent of the carrier's time. If each house was supplied with a box, the carrier could deposit the mail, ring the bell, and be on his way to the next stop, before one could get started to answer the bell. With each residence having such a box it is believed the carriers would frequently be able to complete their routes when otherwise it would be impossible—and you would be rendering those at the latter end of the various routes a great service and convenience by so doing without imposing any special hardship or inconvenience on yourself.

The local office does not supply such boxes nor is it any way interested in the matter beyond the feature of improving the service, and does not require or recommend any particular kind or make of box.

The postoffice department will appreciate your co-operation, both in properly filling out the blank in question and returning them promptly. If you have mislaid your blank ask the carrier for another and install a box or if you have already done so please induce your neighbor to do likewise.

HAWKINS CLAIMS PRISONERS FORCED HIM TO LEAVE JAIL

To the Daily Advocate:—I wish to state that the undersigned, confined in the county jail had no hand in the jail delivery here Sunday morning other than I was made to leave with the two men who escaped. I am a prisoner from the Mansfield reformatory where the penalty for escape or attempt to escape is from two to fifteen years and I have no desire to run away. I knew nothing about any key until I returned to the jail and gave myself up. The door was open when I was awakened by the fellows and told to get my clothes on and come with them and if I raised an alarm they would beat me up. I went out of the jail and up the railroad with them and I left them at Fifth street. I went home and asked my mother the phone number of the jail and notified them of the delivery, and told the turnkey that I would be right down, which I did. This is all I know concerning the jail delivery.

GRANVILLE

Granville, May 10.—The regular meeting of the C. L. Herrick Geological Society was held Monday evening, May 8, when a most interesting program was carried out. A biography of Dr. C. L. Herrick, who was born June 21, 1858, and died in 1904, was given by Miss Dye. While connected with Denison University Dr. Herrick did much good. He was the cause of introducing sufficient subjects so that Denison could give a degree of B. S. "A Report on a Problem," was the subject of a talk given by Mr. Nixon, while Miss Cochran, under the subject of "Storms," afforded a wealth of information regarding atmospheric conditions. Harry Diebel read a most excellent paper on "The Influence of Physical Environment on Peoples," in which he gave some speculations as to how environment influences character. The following officers were also elected for the ensuing year: President, Mr. F. L. Fleener; vice president, Miss Fay Richards; secretary, Miss Edith Philbrook; treasurer, Mr. W. S. Webb.

All the arrangements for the coming Musical Festival to be held in Granville, are now practically complete, and it is expected that the festival will be the most elaborate and successful ever held in Granville. An elaborate souvenir program is being prepared. Besides the lists of the numbers of the various organizations participating and of the subscribers, there will be historical sketches of the Granville Festivals and the Glee clubs, and couplous notes on the programs presented, with the words of the choral works and most of the solo songs. A considerable list of patrons and associates has been secured, and a financial success seems in sight. Parties are expected from Zanesville, New Concord, Cambridge, Hebron, Alexandria, Johnstown, Croton and Columbus. Ample accommodations will be provided for Newark patrons.

Mrs. B. E. Salisbury and Miss Verna Salisbury of Mt. Vernon were guests at Shepardson for a short time.

Miss Carrie Marshall, a charming and accomplished young woman of Terre Haute, Ind., after a short visit here has returned home.
